S	11.1%	100%	Full	Toilet, Utility
SE	11.1%	100%	Full	Kitchen

Brahmasthan: nothing is marked in the centre cell; tradition keeps it open and light.

The grid is the rectangle around the plot, centred on the centre of area and turned to the plan side nearest North. Cell filled shows how much of each cell the plot covers: a cell that is not full is a cut in that direction.

Energy centre analysis

CENTRE	USED FOR	DISTANCE FROM THE CENTRE IN USE
● Polygon centre	In use: 16 zones, entrances, rooms	0.0% of the longer side
● 3×3 grid centre	Shown for comparison	0.0% of the longer side

The energy centre (Brahmasthan point) is where the directions are measured from. The centre of area of the boundary is exact for any shape; the A-B-C-D diagonals and the 3×3 grid give the traditional centres. When they fall far apart the plot is irregular, and the consultant chooses which one to read from.

RING	PADS	SHARE OF THE PLOT	MARKED HERE
 Paishacha	32 of 81	39.5%	Toilet 2, Dining, Master bedroom, Toilet, Utility, Kitchen

 Deva	16 of 81	19.8%	Living room, Pooja
 Brahma pad	8 of 81	9.9%	None
 Brahma	1 of 81	1.2%	None

Each ring is the plot scaled about its centre of area (7/9, 5/9, 3/9 and 1/9), so it follows the plot's own shape. For a plot visible as a whole from its centre the shares are fixed by the mandala; for U-shaped and similar plots they are measured.

Each ring is the plot scaled about its centre of area (6/8, 4/8 and 2/8), so it follows the plot's own shape. For a plot visible as a whole from its centre the shares are fixed by the mandala; for U-shaped and similar plots they are measured.

The four vithis of the 81-pad mandala as rings of the plot scaled about its centre (outer edges at 1, 7/9, 5/9 and 3/9): Paishacha 32, Manushya 24, Deva 16 and Brahmasthan 9 of the 81 pads. Traditional guidance.

An 18×18 grid gives nine rings of equal width, each the plot scaled about its centre of area. In this traditional arrangement, Pishacha, Agni, Naga and Yama vithis are less preferred for living in all four directions. For medium plots use the four vithis (81 Padvinyas).

Keep off the marma points: Sleeping (bed), Column, Wall, Kitchen, WC. Each red circle is one-eighth of a pada across (plot size ÷ 9 ÷ 12 × 1.5).

Six lines from the centre of area to the wall, joining Isha to Pitru, Jayanta to Bhringaraj, Aditi to Sugriva, Vayu to Agni, Mukhya to Bhrisha and Shosha to Vitatha; the marma sthanas are where they cross. A mark within half a pada of a point is listed.

Vastu devta names (81 pads)

The 45 devtas from the centre of area: Brahma inside 1/3 of the plot, 12 devtas to 7/9 split at 27°, 45° and 63° from each cardinal, and 32 outer devtas of 11.25° with Soma centred on true North. Each ring follows the plot's shape.

Aya of the plot and rooms (Vedic)

Set the plot measurement (Length × Breadth) to read the Aya in feet and inches.

Vedic reading, two methods side by side. Inches method (the consultant's planning file): length and width in inches multiplied, remainder after dividing by 8; with whole feet this always gives 8, so it suits measurements with odd inches. Area method: area in sq ft multiplied by 9, remainder after dividing by 8. A remainder of 0 counts as 8. The eight ayas are Dhwaja, Dhuma, Simha, Shvana, Vrishabha, Khara, Gaja and Kaka; tradition favours the odd ones (Dhwaja, Simha, Vrishabha, Gaja). Lengths are read from the drawn outlines (the two sides of a four-cornered room, otherwise its overall size), so check them against the drawing before acting on them.

Placidus cusps, sidereal (Lahiri), as in KP. A planet occupies the house whose cusp it has passed; lordship is every house whose cusp falls in a sign it rules (Rahu and Ketu act for the lord of their sign). Star and sub lords divide each nakshatra in Vimshottari proportion. Antardasha dates are within the running mahadasha.

Rooms by house, owned property: Sample Owner

For a property the family owns, the 4th house is the entrance and each room follows from it. A room does best in the zone of its house's cusp sign. Supportive hits strengthen it; stopping, blocking and pausing hits hold it back, and the hitting planet's objects should be kept out of that zone.

Rooms by house, owned property: Sample Spouse

For a property the family owns, the 4th house is the entrance and each room follows from it. A room does best in the zone of its house's cusp sign. Supportive hits strengthen it; stopping, blocking and pausing hits hold it back, and the hitting planet's objects should be kept out of that zone.

Consultant's notes

Sample recommendation: keep the north-east light and uncluttered, and review the use of Toilet 2 with the family before suggesting any change.

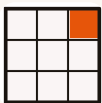

How this report was made

What was measured. The plot boundary was marked on your floor plan and its centre (Brahmasthan) is the centre of area of the boundary. The directions come from the North reading recorded for this plan, corrected for magnetic declination. The plot is divided into 16 zones of 22.5° each, and the share of the plot in each zone is calculated from the marked boundary.

How rooms and doors are read. Each room is placed in the zone where it was marked, and its zone is compared with traditional Vastu guidance for that kind of room. Each door is read by its position among the 32 entrance padas of 11.25°. The 45-devta mandala (9×9 grid) and the four vithis are fitted to the plot from its centre.

The readings describe what Vastu tradition associates with each placement. They are not predictions about you or your family, they are not scientifically proven, and no recommendation can guarantee a result. Any change to walls or structure needs approval from an architect or structural engineer.

Traditional Vastu guidance from a consultation. It is not a score and does not predict health, wealth or any other result. Measured values come from the plan and the compass readings given.
